

Annamayya, in this beautiful song, describes the pranks of little Krishna and how Yashoda desperately tries to catch him with a chain and how he teases her, stealing butter etc

Where is this pretty boy? Catch him and feed him with milk well.

1. He unfastened his chain and rushed to put his hand adorned with flowery bracelet, in the hot butter pot. When he was weeping tears were flowing on his cheeks. Control that mischievous boy.

2. He comes with innocent looks and stretches his hand adorned with bracelets, saying that his hand is paining. His hand and mouth were shabby with curd. Oh Gopikas, control this weeping child.

3. We don't know when he stealthily got into the house to pick something from the box with his hands adorned with rings. Lord Venkatesa is none other than this boy. Lift him and keep him on your head.